

DIESEL SPILLS KILL

The Road Users Campaign to Kill diesel Spills - TRUCKS

HELP TO STOP DIESEL SPILLS

Are you sick of diesel spills on our roads? We are. Sadly on 18th October 2003, we lost one of our members, Lee Connor, aged 31, when he hit a diesel patch and slid in front of an oncoming car. Lee was killed instantly.

We cannot let this threat continue, how many more innocent road users must be killed before the Government take action?

We need your help:

Petition to Government

We the undersigned are deeply concerned about the complete and utter lack of responsibility shown by the operators of some lorries, vans and buses in allowing diesel to be spewed over the road.

This represents a complete and utter disregard to the safety of other road users, in particular motorcyclists. Diesel left on the road is the cause of countless deaths and injuries.

The Government has set targets to reduce the number of deaths on the road, a simple modification to diesel tanks could prevent a significant number of deaths.

It is time the Government introduced legislation to combat this ever increasing danger.

To support us in our campaign, please visit:

www.killspills.org.uk

With your help, we can make a difference.

Visit our website and sign our petition, and add your name to the thousands of others supported by

Thank you for your help and support. Stephen Edwards, Dave Richardson, Ashley Filmer, Darren Law & Darren Bourne of www.CBR600.org.uk and www.MCNNinjas.co.uk